

There Are Only Officials Here

One night in August 2018, the respected Comrade Kim Jong Un went to a street of Pyongyang to try the newly-built tram and trolley bus.

After getting on the tram, he spoke highly of it, and gave his opinions on building it to be more convenient for the passengers.

At that time, an official asked him to pose for a photo in front of the tram.

Casting a meaningful glance at the officials, Kim Jong Un said: You have asked me to pose for a photo in front of the tram. But there are only officials here. Of course, it is officials who conduct the planning and commanding of the production of trams, but it is the workers who build them. They must have taken much trouble to build them on these hot summer days.