

Make Redoubled Efforts

One October day in 2014, the respected Comrade Kim Jong Un visited the newly-built Natural Energy Institute under the State Academy of Sciences.

In the exhibition hall of scientific research achievements he saw exhibits made by the institute and visual aids introducing the research goals set by scientists.

Noting that it was good to make visual aids reflecting the dreams and ideals of the institute's development of technology for using natural energy in the hall, he stressed that scientific research should be conducted with such dreams and ideals.

And he encouraged the scientists to make redoubled efforts to attain higher goals.